THE GRANT MONUMENT.

It is a consolation to know that the plan for the Grant Monument has been accepted. The Committee appears to have used a good deal of hard common sense in determining the successful candidate in the competition. One thing which had great weight in making the design exhibited by Mr. John B. Duncan acceptable to the judges was its adaptability to the instalment idea in erecting it. There is nothing to hinder work from being begun at once. There is the sum of $140,000 on hand for the Grant Monument Fund, and that will push it to a point where, even if there be delay in continuing it, the portion erected will not present a distressing ap-

The estimated cost of the perfected work is half a million dollars. To some minds that may seem an extravagant sum for a tombstone. But the right-thinking American will reflect that if Gen. GRANT deserves a monument at all he should have one which will commemorate not only the worth of the Commander-inflect honor on the dignity of the nation

It should be also borne in mind that the Grant Memorial is a Nation's monument, and every State in the Union should contribute its quota to the erection of it.

BUBINESS THRIVING.

A stranger could not visit this city without being struck by the extraordinary activity manifested in building. New York is not only growing at her extremities, although she is doing that with wonderful vitality. Old business places in the heart of the city are being torn down that towering structures may take their places, several stories higher than the old ones, and far surpassing them in the magnificence of their architecture and the conveniences of their equipments.

This is a sure sign of prosperity. Money has to be put in circulation by the erection of these expensive buildings and labor is provided for thousands of workmen. This is as it should be. The gain which capital makes for itself should produce a corresponding advantage in labor.

Many of these buildings employ the yellowish brown brick which is such an agreeable element in construction either for dwelling-houses or buildings for business purposes. The color is grateful, and the weather does not alter it, and the material is durable. Taste is advancing with everything else.

BLUNDERING NUMBERS.

It seems to matter very little whether New York City is reputed to have a population of one or two hundred thousand less than she is actually possessed of. But there are results of practical importance hinging on a correct census of the inhabitants of this metropolis.

The death rate is obviously incorrect it the proportion is reckoned on a number of deceased which is rightly taken and a number of inhabitants which is wrongly

But even if nothing depended on the correctness of the census enumeration, it is irritating to have all the trouble and expense of counting noses for a mass of more than a million and a half beings and then not arrive at a true result. There are strong reasons for question ing the completeness of the work, and it should be done rightly if for no other reason than to prevent the city from being

The cases which come up before the Police Justices are very much alike, and the class of offenders are very much of the same stripe. They are poor, illiterate persons, coarse and unpreposessing. As a rule the cases offer little that is complicated, and familiarity with human nature and keepness in reading character are the most valuable qualities a Police Justice

The monotony of these reiterated case and the uninteresting character of the offenders are likely to beget an unsympathetic perfunctory treatment of them in the Police Justice. But the Justices get good enough salaries to make it incumbent on them to be just, even if it is a bore to listen to the cases attentively and give them due reflection. That the poor man is one who can ill resent an unjust decision in his case makes it all the more imperative that perfect fairness should rule the Judge sours squeaks. I'll tell bile t'go over th'

But in place of hanging them on the walls, they are to serve as a new sort of bed covering instead of quilts, being very light and almost as warm as down comfortables. A thin washing blanket is laid over the sheet, then one or more of these woven scrap-comfortables goes under the spread, and a light, deliciously warm cover is the result. Handsome ones, shot in the gold, orange, russet, and crimson fraged wool being used for coloring if silk is scarce, will answer for lounge blankets. Many ladies will be pleased with some sort of use for worn-out-silk, hitherto most useless of materials. The pretiest way of making it useful, however, is a tedious one. The scraps are all joined, fraged on both edges half an inch and drawn up by the centre into a thick, fine chenille, very handsome for fringes or, if one ever had enough of it, for the cord draperies in doorways. One can hardly imagine how beautiful the work is or how elegant a door curtain of this sort can be.

A library exclusively intended for women will shortly be opened at Turin. The rooms are elegantly furnished, and the tables will be covered with all the best periodicals and newspapers that can interest female readers, while the best modern books will fill the shelves. Turin will be the first Italian city that can boast of such a library.

A ROMANTIC INHERITANCE

Robbed of a Small Sum and Left a Fortune by the Thief. From Stamford, Conn., comes the tale of an inheritance which readslike the plot of an English sensational novel, says the Boston Courier,

A crippled music teacher of that place had by strictest economy saved, some thirty years since, about $1,500, with which he intended to buy a home for himself and his mother. He siways kept the money beside his bed, and one night it was atolen. All search was unavailing, and the poor fellow took up his work
